

One Cutter

Flowers Tutorial

Yvette Humbert, Leander, TX

Pink Flower

Roll your sugar paste thin and cut 5 circles with the round cutter

Pinch one edge of the circle to make your first petal. Repeat on remaining petals.

Make a small ball of sugar paste and flatten it to a disc. Glue the five petals on the disc, overlapping slightly. Make the center of the flower with a different color by making a tiny ball and flatten to a disc.

Yellow Mum

Cut a circles, then cut small petals on the edge of the circle. Repeat as needed. You can fill the flower with as many or as few petals as you wish. Use fewer bigger petals in white with yellow centers for daisies.

Make a disc with a small ball of sugar paste. Glue the petals to the disc with a bit of water.

Keep adding petals until you are pleased with the result..

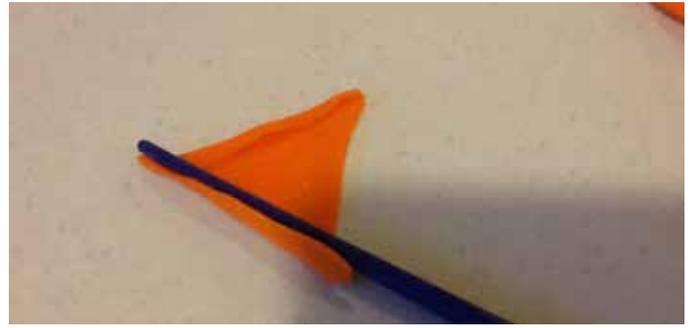

When you are satisfied with the look of your flower, add the flower center.

Orange Flower

Cut a circle (you can use a larger round cutter for this), then cut into a triangle.

Curl 2 sides of the triangle, using the end of your water brush, or a toothpick.

Pinch slightly the tip of the petal. Pinch the bottom of the petal, rolling it between your fingers to form a stem. Make 6 petals

Cut the stem if too long. Glue the petals to a small disc of sugar paste. Glue a flower center

Yellow Rose

Cut a strip of rolled yellow sugar paste (here approximately 1.5" x 6") and fold it in two, making sure not to flatten the fold. Trim one end to about 1/2"

Start rolling from the narrow side. Rolling more loosely as you go. The more loosely your roll, the more open your rose will be.

Calla Lily

Cut a circle of white sugar paste. Slightly pinch one side of the circle to give it a slight tip.

Make the center of the Calla Lily with green or yellow sugar paste. Roll a small amount of sugar paste into a small log, thinner at one end.

Wrap the white circle around the green center, with the tip on top. Secure with a bit of water.

Flower Centers

The center of all flowers are made the same way. Take a small ball of sugar paste and press it into a small disc. With the edge of the mini palette knife or the blunt edge of the craft knife, press a grid design.

Supplies:

- 1 cake board (if doing a plaque) here a 8x8
- 1 round cutter (here a 1.5")
- Assorted colored fondant (here I used Fondarific), you can also use modeling chocolate or gumpaste
- Craft knife
- small brush and water
- Mini palette knife

These flowers can be done in any size needed, and are beautiful on a cake.

As you practice, the thinner you roll your sugar paste or modeling chocolate, the better it will look.

Leaf

Cut a disc of sugar paste and cut it in half.

Trim each half into a triangle.

Slightly fold 2 sides of the triangle then bring each side to the center.

Slightly pinch the top of the leaf to give it a point. Pinch the bottom of the leaf and roll it between your fingers to give it a small stem.

The final framed bouquet.

Sweetpea

Cut a disc of white and a disc of blue. Here, I cut the blue disc a little bigger. Fold the white (smaller) disc in two. Do not flatten the fold.

Fold the blue (bigger) disc in two and place the white folded disc inside, with the folded edge facing out. Secure with a bit of water. Pleasingly arrange your flowers on the board.

Frame

Finish your board with a frame of your choice. Here, I used an oval frame from Amazing Cake Artistry, cut it in two and straighten it before applying it to my board.
